

SUSTAINABLE HAND SANITIZER

We want to create a new type of hand sanitizer that not only keeps your hands clean but also speaks to the modern consumer who is concerned about the ethical aspects of a product - and how it impacts the environment. SERUMONY is a hand disinfectant with visions to create sustainability and circular economy.

The demand for hand sanitizers has been increased by COVID-19 and good hand hygiene has become a permanent component in our society. The demand for sustainable, well-designed, user-friendly and touch-free hand sanitizer dispensers in open environments such as restaurants, hotels, retailers and offices will also be much more significant.

Our main focus has been to make a solution with a timeless touchfree design, requiring as little maintenance as possible. We have dedicated focus on sustainability. The product is made in Skanderborg in Denmark with most of our suppliers within a radius of 30 kilometers from our headquarter in Skanderborg to make our supply chain as simple as possible all in an effort to reduce our carbon footprint.
